WORLD'S FAIR

1933 PRICE LIST

Sprouted Roots

After May 1, 1933

Postage Paid

All orders subject to prior sale and keeping of roots through winter storage.

Our appeal is to the small grower, who, in the past, has paid too much "freight" or overhead. We feel that our prices are to a wholesale plane and, for that reason, reserve the right to limit quantities on certain varieties much in demand, in order to serve the many, who have voiced their appreciation of our efforts to "pull the cork" and join the "Caterpillar Club" in accord with the spirit of the times. Down with 5-cent pie-cuts, 2-bit hair-cuts, 15-cent bacon, nickel cigars, 12-cent oats, 98-cent galoshes, 60-cent potatoes, 9-cent gasoline and other "skids".

Last season, we added potash to our culture—an assurance to you of good, healthy field grown stock. Not being interested in the cut flower market, we hold our blooms to a minimum. You can not "cook the goose and have it honk the morning after"—so experience teaches that any dahlia root system that is highly fertilized and forced to produce mammoth blooms is not a good investment for the following season's growth.

Yes, we show our thanks, in a material way, for a mailing list of your friends, who raise dahlias.

LARGE FLOWERING CANNAS

King Humbert, Orange Scarlet with bronze foliage, height 5 ft.....3 for 25c

Join the American Dahlia Society, which is doing great work to foster the popularity of the flower. For further particulars, address C. L. Alling, 251 Court Street, West Haven, Conn.

"The greatest show ever" is on the calendar for September 15, 16 and 17, 1933, when the International Dahlia Exhibition will go to concerted action in connection with the World's Fair at Chicago. F. R. Kleehammer, secretary of the Central States Dahlia Society, 3653 Diversy Ave., Chicago, will answer inquiries of all nature.

Some have experienced discouragements in raising dahlias, due, in most cases, to a lack of essentials—such as good drainage, depth in planting to avoid drouths, distance from the root systems of trees and shrubbery, cultivation after rains, heavy mulching in middle August, and most important of all, spraying of the plants at least once each week from early growth in June until the killing frost in October. We have found "EVERGREEN" a very satisfactory insecticide, expense considered.

Maybe dahlias are somewhat tempermental, but they are the PRIMA DONNAS of the garden and that's sumptin.
